PG&E starts work under West Sac streets

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

PG&E has announced it is working to replace underground natural gas lines in parts of West Sacramento through late November. The company is expecting the work to cause few disruptions in gas service – but some impact on local traffic.

Crews will be working to replace pipes under West Capitol Avenue (Northport Drive to Westacre Road), Westacre Road (Merkley Avenue to Jefferson Blvd.), Jefferson Boulevard to 15th Street, and 15th Street to the Sacramento River.

Some sections of the work will be done by night crews; others in the daylight, PG&E spokeswoman Jana Morris told the News-Ledger. This is partly in response to requests from the City of West Sacramento, which tried to minimize impact on traffic.

"It is a project that is going to be done in a shifts," said Morris. "There is going to be a day shift and a night shift. The day shift will be in certain locations and the night shift will be at certain locations."

"At times, you may smell gas and hear a loud, steady noise as we vent natural gas from the pipeline using safe and common techniques," said a PG&E advisory sent to property owners along the route. "Although this is normal when crews are working, we encourage anyone who has concerns about the smell of gas to call us 24 hours a day at 1-800-743-5000."

The work will close one

High school volunteers help arrange Jigger's visit to a kids' reading program

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A volunteer group at River City High School has been working on a children's literacy program of late: since February, they've invited younger kids to show up and read to older volunteers at the Arthur F. Turner Branch Library.

But on August 9, the program took a bit of a left turn: the "volunteer" who showed up to listen was not actually a person. It was a horse named "Jigger," supplied by Ron Morazzini of the West Sacramento Trail Riders Association. Several little kids had a chance to read to Jigger.

"Eighteen children from the ages of five to 11 signed up for the program," reported local chiropractor Charyl Silver, who works with the Interact Club at the high school. "Ron Morazzini brought his horse, Jigger, for the children to read to. WSTRA (the trail riding group) donated books about horses for the children to bring home."

West Sac couple gets hitched at 'Cats game

"Dinger" gave away the bride.

That was just one unique thing about the marriage of West Sacramento natives Jalena Rusaw and Alan Slape, who made their vows during a 60-second ceremony between innings at Saturday's River Cats game.

"Alan and I were engaged in June, 2013," the bride told the News-Ledger. "I told him we could get married sometime next year as I was too busy working a full-time job, attending grad school, and completing my practicum as a marriage family therapist-trainee."

The couple are season ticket holders to the minor league River Cats, who play at Raley Field in their hometown.

And so:

"Later that week we attended a 'Cats game and he had the thought of having our wedding during

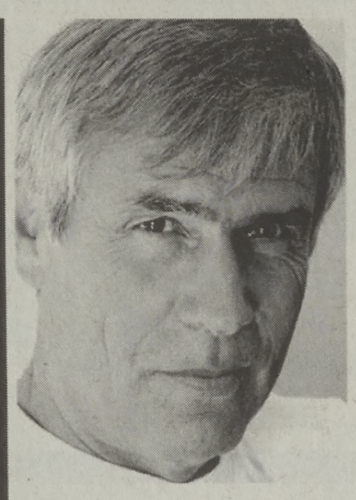
Vacation: the dog finds out where it stands

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

I was talking to a friend the other day and asked him if he and his family had gone on their summer vacation yet, knowing that when it starts to get really hot in the Sacramento Valley, he likes to get out of town and visit some of the same places I enjoy, like the really big redwood trees up around the Avenue of the Giants and the lovely beaches just north of San Francisco.

"Did you make it over to Bodega Bay yet this summer?" I asked him.

"No, we've basically been stuck in town since June," he said with a sigh.

"How come?"

"Because my wife and kids came up with the bright idea of getting ourselves another dog and they aren't comfortable with leaving it with any of our friends, much less in one of those kennels that house dogs while people are away on their vacations."

"I didn't know you had a new dog. Is he cute?"

"All puppies are cute at first. But they're also a lot of work and guess who's getting to do most of it? After our other dog died, I promised myself that I was going to get out of the dog business for good, since it is just too hard to have to keep putting dogs down once they get old and sick. But the kids of course talked me into it, so now we're stuck in town this summer."

"Why don't you just take him with you?"

"He's a she, actually, and unfortunately, one of the first things we learned about our new dog is that she barfs all over the place if you take her very far in a car. And since both my wife and the kids think she will die of loneliness if we go somewhere without her, I guess there will be no getting out of town this year."

As my friend continued to bemoan the fact that his new dog was keeping him from having a summer vacation, I suddenly found myself remembering a long ago August when all three of my young sons decided their parents owed them a trip to Disneyland, even though I was not thrilled about leaving Mikey (our Cocker Spaniel) behind. When I suggested to my wife that we just pack a little doggie bag and take Mikey along with us, her response was quick and final.

"Daryl," she said with conviction, "if Mikey is going to Disneyland, then I'm not!"

"But I bet he would love Disneyland."

"He's a dog! He's never even heard of Mickey Mouse or Donald Duck. And I bet they don't even let dogs into Disneyland. Plus Carrie (my teenage daughter at the time) doesn't want to go, and she will take really good care of him while we're gone."

So, after reluctantly informing Mikey that he wasn't going on the trip to Disneyland, he started acting really pitiful, and I started to worry about him. He and I had never really been separated since the day I had adopted him from the Sacramento City Pound only a few hours before they were going to put him to sleep, and like most Cocker Spaniels, he immediately attached himself to the largest male in the family – me. I couldn't even go to the bathroom without him hurrying into the room before I shut the door. I wasn't sure what I had done to deserve his devotion other than feeding him on a regular basis and letting him sleep next to my head at night, but it had gotten to the point where he would often hang out at the front door and wait to hear the sound of my truck coming around the corner.

Anyway, once in Los Angeles and comfortably settled into our hotel room, I immediately called home and said to my daughter, "So, how's Mikey?"

"Dad," she said, her voice sounding a little hurt, "first you're supposed to ask about me, and then the dog, okay?"

"Sorry."

"Well, to tell you the truth, he won't eat and he's spent most of the day sitting on the chair next to the window waiting for you to come back."

"I tell you what," I suggested, "why don't you put him on the phone for a few minutes."

I adopted him from the pound only a few hours before they were going to put him to sleep, and he immediately attached himself to me. I couldn't even go to the bathroom without him hurrying into the room before I shut the door.

"You're kidding? You want me to get Mikey and put him on the telephone?"

"Sure, why not? Just lift up one of his little earflaps and stick the receiver right in there."

"Okay," she finally said, "but do you know what people would think if they knew you were actually talking long distance to a dog?"

Although my conversation with Mikey turned out to be a little one-sided, it was still quite enjoyable and my daughter swore that the sound of my voice had cheered him up a little bit. I also promised him that I'd check in with him every night while we were gone.

"Why is it that people get so darn attached to dogs?" suddenly asked my friend, still not very happy about not being able to have a summer vacation this year.

"I don't have a clue," I answered.

"You wouldn't worry about a silly dog if you were off having a fun summer vacation, would you?"

"Who, me? Of course not!"

a game," added Rusaw. "I gave him only three requests - I wanted to wear a dress, my girls and mom needed to attend, and more importantly, it had to be memorable. The rest was in his hands."

"Needless to say, we had a beautiful wedding," she said. "The River Cats' 'groove crew' dressed up in tuxes and red dresses for the occasion."

Wedding-related events popped up between innings, as the 'Cats dealt with the visiting Tucson Padres.

"We had a cupcake give-away as we cut our cake, tossed the bouquet from the (balcony) suite, rode in the hot dog cart with a 'just married' sign, and danced our first dance on the field after the game."

The wedding party wore red tennis-style shoes – a nice contrast with the lush green turf at Raley Field.

"It was a very memorable evening," summed up the bride with some understatement.

COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Now You See Me" (PG-13) -- Four magicians (Woody Harrelson, Isla Fisher, Jesse Eisenberg and Dave Franco) are paid by a wealthy investor to do a magic show in which they empty a bank vault in France and shower the money all over their audience in America. Various law enforcement agencies are not so impressed, and an international investigation starts -- trying to pull back the curtain on what appears to be some kind of heist cover-up deal.

This movie is more obsessed with plot twists than entertaining the audience. Everybody knows that magic tricks are a lot less impressive when they're in a movie -- you got out of those handcuffs with editing, Jesse Eisenberg, not sleight of hand or magic. The film tries to inject thrills through swirling cameras and super-plot-twists that don't delight as much as they annoy.

"From Up on Poppy Hill" (PG) -- Umi is a thoughtful girl living in Japan in 1963. While her country is gearing up for hosting the 1964 Olympics, the devastation of World War II lingers. In the scenic port town of Yokohama, Umi raises flags in her front yard in remembrance of her father, who died at sea. Shy Umi and her flags catch the attention of a classmate, and a romance starts to grow between the two kids while they learn about past and future, youth and age.

Studio Ghibli has long been recognized as one of the finest animation outfits in the world. Their films are usually poignant, touching and wondrous. This time around, legendary director Hayao Miyazaki provides the script, and gives the directing duty to his son, Goro Miyazaki.

"Stories We Tell" -- Some stories we tell a million times over, and they change just a bit each time just as our memories of the events change. This unique documentary collects stories from the filmmaker's (Sarah Polley) family, showing that stories and memories often are contradictory, and the truth is hard to be sure of. The documentary has a double-investigation, as the Polley's interviews begin to look into the secrets kept by the long-past mother of the family.

"Somm" -- There is a certification so prestigious and so difficult to attain that less that 200 people have passed the exam in 40 years. The Master Sommelier Exam requires that you know just about everything about every wine in the world -- what to eat with it, where it's from and even how to pour it. This documentary isn't just for wine aficionados. It has that appeal of watching people commit to a dream and work to make it come true despite ridiculous odds.

J. Paul Getty III was the grandson of an oil baron once thought to be the richest man on the planet. Getty was 16 and living on his own in Rome in 1973. He frequented nightclubs, dabbled in art and even acted as an extra in films. On July 10, 1973, he was kidnapped by Italian gangsters.

Two days later, his mother received a ransom note demanding $17 million, followed by a note from Getty begging his family not to let him be killed. It was then that Getty's family and police realized this was not a publicity stunt. The kidnappers offered to send a severed finger to prove they had Getty and that he was still alive.

His grandfather, J. Paul Getty I, dug in his heels and refused to pay. Getty's father, who also lived in Italy, said he did not have the funds to meet the ransom demand. So a lengthy delay of several months began.

Three months later, when Getty's ear and a lock of his hair came in the mail along

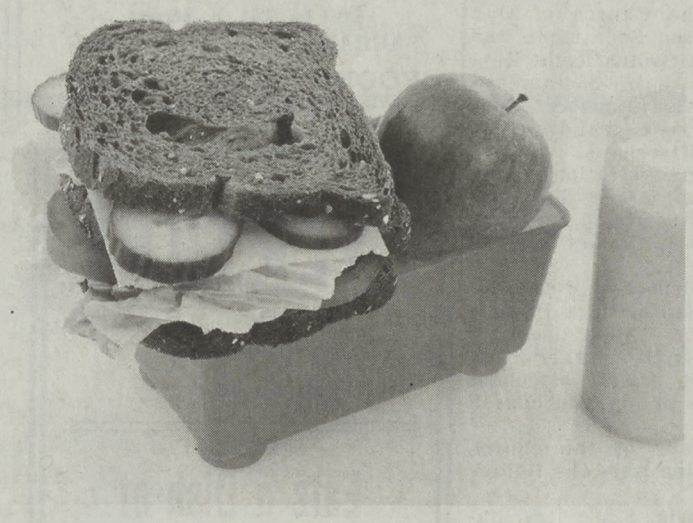
The Lunch Bunch



Students are heading back to school, and you probably went to great lengths to ensure your child has the right equipment -- pencils, pens, notebooks, clothing -- to make it through the day. Proper nutrition also is a key ingredient for back-to-school success because it fuels brain cells and gives your child the energy and nutrients he or she needs for optimal learning. Packing your child's lunch lets you know exactly what he or she is eating.

Follow these tips, and not only will you save money, but you will pack a nutritious lunch that your child will enjoy:

--A healthy lunch should contain foods from each of the five food groups: carbohydrates, protein, dairy, fruits and vegetables. Choose whole-grain products like bread, tortillas, pita bread, bagels or whole-grain crackers. These are more nutritious, have more fiber, vitamins and minerals, and keep blood sugar steady for optimal learning.

--Select protein foods wisely. Use lean meat like chicken or turkey breast, hard-boiled eggs, tuna packed in water, beans or peanut butter. Protein in every meal helps keep blood sugar steady.

--Buy fruits and vegetables that are in season and serve them creatively. Examples include baby carrots with yogurt dip, or other cut vegetables with low-fat dip or hummus.

--Choose low-fat or fat-free dairy products like yogurt, milk and cheese. These are great calcium and protein sources.

--For side items, re-think that bag of chips. Instead, choose carrots sticks, celery sticks with peanut butter and raisins, apple slices with peanut butter, fruit salad, whole fruit, raisins or pretzels.

--For dessert, think beyond the cookie. Try whole-grain graham crackers, ginger snaps, raisins, unsweetened applesauce, homemade muffins or fresh fruit.

--Choose a beverage that hydrates, like water, or choose low-fat or fat-free milk for additional protein, calcium and vitamin D. Avoid drinks with calories and no nutrients.

--Choose an insulated bag and freezer packs to keep food at a safe temperature. Buy containers to fit your lunchbox needs. Invest washable and reusable containers in a variety of sizes. Avoid using plastic sandwich baggies.

--Buy in bulk. Avoid single-serve packaging. You save money when you buy in bulk and pack it yourself into single servings. Buy a large container of yogurt or pudding and use 4-ounce containers to pack your own. Buy a block of cheese and cut it into cubes or shred it. Buy crackers in boxes, rather than individual packages.

--Make your own sandwich fillings. Look beyond lunch meat. Slice your own meat or grill chicken breast and cut it into strips or cubes. Avoid prepackaged lunches, which are costly.

--Pack leftovers for lunch. Use meats, veggies and fruits in sandwiches and salads. Homemade soup is always a good option.

--Buy what's on sale and use coupons. Get whatever is on sale each week and work it into a menu. Use fruits and vegetables that are in season.

--Buy store brand and compare unit prices. Look high and low -- bargains are usually on the top or bottom shelves, not at eye level.

--Plan ahead and have a list when you go to the store. The more time you spend in a store, the more money you spend.

--Add some fun touches to the meal. The traditional peanut butter and jelly sandwich can become pretty boring. Get a couple of cookie cutters and have kids cut the sandwich into different shapes. Include the kids in the preparation process and give them choices. Take them along when grocery shopping. Let them pick one new fruit or vegetable each week that they'd like to try. Let them help pack their lunch.

--Think beyond bread when making sandwiches. A good alternative is a whole-wheat pita pocket with hummus, shredded vegetables and grilled chicken strips.

--Vary the preparation. Try grilled or baked, chopped or grated, plain or with a dip.

--Pack a variety of options to keep a child's interest. Avoid packing the same lunch every day -- this prevents kids from getting bored.

--Practice good nutrition yourself. Children learn by association -- you need to be a role model. Talk with them the benefits of healthy eating. Don't get discouraged if your child rejects a food on first taste. It can take 15 to 20 tries before a child gets used to a new food.

--A nutritious lunch does not have to be boring or cost you a fortune. Making small changes can save you money. Try one or two tips each week, and soon you should see some relief in your grocery bills. Remember that well-nourished children have a greater chance of success at school because they have the fuel and the energy they need to play and learn.

THE YOLO INDEPENDENT — FRIDAY, JULY 16, 1920.

NEAR TRAGEDY COST ABOUT $7,000 LOSS LAST SATURDAY

On one of its Saturday evening pleasure excursions on the river the Pankost Boat and Fish Co. lost about $7,000 last Saturday when the tug "Scout" took fire from an overheated engine and became a total loss.

Two hundred persons danced on an attached barge but were uninjured because of the quick work of the crew under command of Earl Pankost.

He cut the tow lines and ran the "Scout" on a sandbar, where it burned to the water's edge.

The men jumped into the river and swam to safety before the gasoline tanks exploded.

The launch started out at 8 o'clock from the M street landing with the barge on which were the dancers. The party was on its way down the river. At a point opposite the foot of U street, fire broke out on the launch shortly before 9 o'clock. The cause is attributed to the heating of the engine in pulling the barge over a sandbar.

The orchestra on the barge remembered the Titanic's band and struck up a lively air when the flames, bursting from the launch created considerable excitement on the barge. All quieted down and the members of the party went on with the dance. Later another tug was sent out to take the barge in tow.

The fire department of Sacramento was called to the river and the police department sent a detail of officers to render help should it become necessary.

CAPITAL STOCK OF VIRDEN COMPANY INCREASED FROM FIVE TO TEN MILLION DOLLARS

CONSTRUCTION OF PLANT WILL BE STARTED IN THE FALL AS SOON AS THE HARVEST CROPS ARE LAID AWAY BY THE FARMERS

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Virden Packing Co. held in Sacramento yesterday it was decided to increase the capitalization from five million dollars to ten million dollars.

As soon as the approval of the Commissioner of Corporations, E. C. Bellows, can be gained for this increase the new stock will be sold, but the old stockholders will have the privilege of first call for the stock.

The sale of the original five million dollar stock was almost completed but as many of the buyers were farmers and unable to make payments until their harvest was completed the decision above was arrived at.

There is no doubt, however, that the Commissioner of Corporations will grant the necessary permit for the additional five million doliars.

Speaking to The Inedpendent, Charles E. Virden said, concerning this:

"The first estimates have been greatly enlarged concerning both the building and the amount required to transact business on such a large scale. More money is necessary now to do business than a year ago, but the plans of the corporation have not been altered except in the way of enlargement."

Knowing that the banks are refusing loans for all purposes except to farmers the building of the Virden plant in West Sacramento will be delayed until fall. This will not reduce the size of the plant in any particular, but on the contrary may mean a much bigger factory.

The stockholders' meeting was unanimous in sanctioning the raise in capitalization and many subscribers for stock asked for more of the new issue when it becomes available

The plant site at West Sacramento has been staked following a general survey and the plans of the building have been drawn and are ready for bids when the specifications can be finished.

When permission is secured from the Commissioner of Corporations a campaign of selling will be started by the fiscal agents, Whisner and Knowles.

They expect little trouble in disposing of the additional five million dollars worth of stock.

It is expected by the officers of the company that construction of the plant will be started about the end of October or the early part of November.

GUEST OPINION:

Turning a corner on childhood obesity?

Submitted by: Dr. Janey Thornton
USDA Deputy Under Secretary for Food, Nutrition and Consumer Services

As the Department of Agriculture's Deputy Under Secretary for Food, Nutrition and Consumer Services, I am on a mission to make sure all of our nation's children have the best possible chance at a healthy life and a bright future. So, I'm very encouraged by some recent news from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC): the rate of obesity among low-income pre-school children appears to be declining for the first time in decades.

The declining rates show that our collective efforts—at the Federal, State and community level—are helping to gain ground on childhood obesity, particularly among some of the more vulnerable populations in our country. Low-income children are often at a big disadvantage when it comes to getting the food they need to grow up healthy and strong, which is why the nutrition programs and resources available through USDA are so vital.

Programs like WIC—with its new, healthier food package offerings for pregnant women, breastfeeding mothers and young children, including more fruits and vegetables and more whole grains—and the Child and Adult Care Food Program—with its increasing emphasis on nutrition and physical activity for young children—are making a difference in the lives of millions of children.

Our efforts don't stop there. School-aged children are now getting healthier and more nutritious school meals and snacks, thanks to the support of First Lady Michelle Obama's Let's Move! initiative and historic changes implemented under the historic Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act. We're supporting healthy, local foods in schools through our Farm to School grant program, and we're improving access to fresh produce and healthy foods for children and families that receive Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program benefits.

So what can you do to make a change in your home and community? Parents and caregivers can use educational materials like Healthy Eating for Preschoolers and Nutrition and Wellness Tips for Young Children to help teach young children healthy habits from the start. Teachers, principals and school food service professionals can use nutrition education materials like the Great Garden Detective curriculum provided through Team Nutrition to motivate older children to eat healthy and try new foods. Kids can explore MyPlate Kids Place and take the MyPlate Pledge to commit to making healthy food choices at school and at home. And parents, teachers, and kids alike can get active and learn about healthy foods with Let's Move! in school, at home and in their communities.

> The rate of obesity among low-income pre-school children appears to be declining for the first time in decades.

Don't get me wrong—we still have a long way to go before America's childhood obesity epidemic is a thing of the past. Far too many—1 out of every 8—preschoolers are still obese. Unfortunately, obesity in these early childhood years sets the perfect stage for serious health problems throughout the entire lifespan.

We at USDA are proud of our ongoing efforts to ensure the health of America's next generation, and we know that, combined with your efforts at home, we are beginning to see real results in thefight against early childhood obesity.

Learn more about USDA's efforts to improve child nutrition and visit ChooseMyPlate.gov for quick, easy nutrition and diet tips for families.

along with a reduced demand of $3 million, the case was kicked into high gear. J. Paul Getty I finally paid $2.2 million, but only after his accountants told him it was tax deductible. His son borrowed the rest from his dad at 4 percent interest. On Dec. 15, Getty was found at an abandoned gas station, malnourished and missing his ear.

During the entire ordeal, the late Charles Fox followed the kidnapping, capturing not just the facts of the bizarre case but also the voices of the models, maids, artists and club owners who had played important roles in young Getty's life. During the 1990s, Getty asked Fox to help him write his autobiography, which was published shortly before his death in 2012.

Getty had died the previous year.

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF
Bunji Bill Taguma
CASE NUMBER PB13-130

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Bunji Bill Taguma:

A Petition for Probate has been filed by Anna M. Taguma in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

The Petition for Probate requests that Anna M. Taguma be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: Aug. 27, 2013, at 8:30 a.m. in Dept. 15, Superior Court of California, County of Yolo, 1100 Main St., Woodland CA.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A "Request for Special Notice" form is available from the court clerk.
